

Lozano received 2,523 votes and Ybarra received 1,068.

In district-wide voting that included Kleberg, Brooks, Cameron, Jim Hogg, Kenedy, and Willacy counties, Lozano received 8,855 votes while Ybarra tallied 6,708 votes.

"I would specifically like to thank Kleberg County for all their support and faith in me," Lozano said. "I would also like to thank my family, who undoubtedly have been my biggest supporters. I was outpacing in campaigning 2/1 in Kleberg County by my opponent and 4/1 in the Valley, but we ran a genuine campaign from the heart and I think we connected with every single person in the district."

Lozano, whose job begins January 1, said he plans to get to work as soon as possible and will start holding forums in each of the six counties of District 43 in the summer.

"I want to hear the public's concerns and start formulating plans in order to be able to draft legislation that I can submit for my first week in office," Lozano said.

"I am looking forward to serving District 43 the best way that I can, in Kingsville and I will fight to bring more jobs to the area, better pay for teachers, and new programs to TAMUK including a Vet Tech school, a nursing school and also strengthen the engineering school as well."

There will be three runoff elections based on Tuesday's results including the offices of County Clerk, Pct. 2 County Commissioner, and Pct. 2 Justice of the Peace.

For the first time this year, results were posted online at the Kleberg County Clerk's website however, once the early vote totals and first 10/20 precincts were reported the website crashed due to the high volume of citizens searching the website.

"There was a flurry of public inquiries looking for local election results statewide last night that caused the site to crash," Kleberg County Clerk Leo Alarcon, top vote-getter in local Democratic primary races, said.

"I notified some of my contacts by email to see if Kleberg County was the only site not working but found out that it was many other counties websites as well so I wanted to see if CIRA (the company that hosts the website) could signoff the site to see if I could continue with the posting results and nothing worked until Wednesday morning."

Alarcon said that CIRA hosts 184 county web sites and on a typical day the servers handle between 30 to 60 queries a second, however Tuesday night the totals jumped to 841 queries a second, 2800 percent more than normal.

Due to the website complications, many candidates relied on phone calls from their different sources for the latest totals and developments.

To win a race in the March primary, candidates had to capture at least 50 percent of the votes and in races where such was not the case, the top two candidates will battle it out on the April 13 runoff election.

Early voting will be held one week prior from April 5 through April 9.

In the hotly contested district clerk race, Crystal L. Lomas, with 1,395 votes, is set to face off against Melissa Ruiz Salinas, who garnered 1,002 votes.

Jennifer Whittington-Silva came in third for the position with 960 votes and Lisamarie Erebia rounded it out with 176 votes.

In the Pct. 2 County Commissioner race, Incumbent Norma Nelda Alvarez, 392 votes, will face former Pct. 2 Commissioner Joe G. Hinojosa, 302 votes, in the Democratic runoff.

In the Republican primary for Pct. 2 Commissioner, Chuck Schultz defeated Robert W. Rabe Jr. after taking 157 votes over Rabe's 34.

The winner of the Democratic runoff will face Schultz in November.

In the race for Pct. 2 Justice of the Peace, six candidates were vying for the position, however incumbent Mario Delgado received the most votes with 254 and will face off against Carmen Cortez, whose votes totaled 152.

Incumbents led the way the rest of the night as Pct. 4 County Commissioner Romeo L. Lomas, 638 votes, defeated Faustino Erebia Jr., 232 votes.

Incumbent Pct. 1 Justice of the Peace Andy Gonzalez, 726 votes, defeated Lindsay N. Lewis who totaled 368 votes.
